Making the Connections

New York's Trafficked Youth

TUESDAY, MAY 9th 2017, 8:30AM-5PM

At the Best Western Conference Center in Kingston, NY

Making the Connections for New York's Trafficked Youth is designed to prevent and resolve incidents of child sex trafficking in New York State by fostering the collaboration and cooperation among professionals, local and state law enforcement agencies, and social services providers who serve vulnerable children at risk of or already victims of sex trafficking. The day-long, multidisciplinary event of panel presentations and workshops will be focused on the statewide inter-connectedness of New York's missing, exploited, runaway, homeless, and trafficked youth.

Featured Speakers and Workshops include:

- Adua Affu, Women's Services Coordinator at The Center for Court Innovation's Gender Justice Team, and Lead for the Hidden Victims Project
- Nehal Raval, The New York Women's Foundation, Sex Trafficking of Minors in New York: Increasing Prevention and Collective Action
- NY's Safe Harbour Programs
- Learning From Success: Barriers to Identifying Trafficking Survivors in LGBTQ Communities, Lynly Eyles, Esq., Sex Workers Project at the Urban Justice Center
- Creating Impactful Residential and Aftercare Services, Dr. David Crenshaw, Children's Home of Poughkeepsie; Human Trafficking is a Public Health Issue
- Dr. Hanni Stoklosa, emergency medicine physician at Brigham and Women's Hospital, co-founder of HEAL Trafficking in 2013, an independent, interdisciplinary network of health professionals working to combat human trafficking
- Vulnerable Youth: Runaways and Transitioning From Care
- State and Federal Resources

The Best Western Conference Center is conveniently located just off Kingston Thruway Exit 19 and across from the Trailways Bus Station. Rooms are available to participants at a special rate of $109/night.
